

Robert is an Assistant Vice President in the Asset Based Lending group at HSBC in New York. Robert has been with the group for over 3 years and started his career at HSBC as an Analyst. Robert is involved in underwriting new to bank transactions and managing a portfolio of deals across a variety of industries, and is seasoned in evaluating amendments, restructurings, and new investments through business analysis, detailed financial modeling and industry research. Additionally, Robert helps to train new team members through one-on-one sessions and frequent check-ins.

Prior to HSBC, Robert was a Senior Associate at Friedman LLP, a public accounting firm in New York. At Friedman, he supervised an audit team on one of Friedman's largest clients, and also prepared and reviewed tax returns for partnerships, corporations and individuals, mostly in the real estate development and consumer products industries. Robert is a licensed Certified Public Accountant in the State of New York and is a Certified Financial Modeling and Valuation Analyst.

Robert is a member of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants, the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants and also sits on the Board of the Future Leaders Committee of the New York Institute of Credit. Robert holds a Bachelor's degree in Accounting from Marist College, where he graduated with honors. Robert also holds a Master's degree in Financial Accountancy from Rutgers University.